"Whatever It Takes"

Late Assignments

All missing assignments between August 20th and October 12th are due by Tuesday, October 29th. I originally said by Friday, October 26th, but I am giving them the three day weekend to get caught up. Whatever is not turned in will be a zero and cannot be made up. From now on, all missing assignments must be turned in within two weeks from the due date to get credit. After that, it will be a zero. Students need to be responsible with the handouts I give them. I have a limited supply of copies each month and cannot be making extras because students have lost them. Some handouts are available online and can be printed from home. Please continue to check Parent Connect for grades and missing assignments. I have made some mistakes inputting some scores and parents and/or students have spotted them and have let me know.

Week of October 29th

History

Interactive notebooks are due on Wednesday. This gives them a few more days to add their own notes and pictures. Their notebook should contain six handouts. Three fill in worksheets (3.1-3.3) and three previews (3.1-3.3). This week they will start chapter 2 about the Islamic Civilization.

ELA (3/4 & 5/6 period)

The class will finish their rough draft about the Ebola virus and start working on their typed final draft. This will be due on Friday, November 2nd. They will take a test on the story from this week called "Travels with Charley." At the end of the week, they will read an article about midterm elections and have some worksheets to go with it. I continue

USING THEIR TIME WISELY

I continue to give a lot of time in class to work on assignments and I keep it relatively quiet during this time. Some students finish their work before they walk out the door, or did most of it and have very little to do at home. Still, others choose to talk or do other things except work. The result is missing or late assignments, which affects their grade. Please talk to your child about the importance of doing their work in class to avoid having a lot of homework or low scores due to missing or late assignments.

NO SCHOOL ON MONDAY

CLASSROOM DONATIONS

Donations are always accepted for the class. We are always in need of hand sanitizer, Clorox wipes, and Kleenex. Thank you!
