News & Notes

- Now that I am not coaching (until February), I will be available after school between 30 minutes and 60 minutes. They can work on assignments or get help if needed. Please have them check with me in advance just in case I have to leave early to pick up my son.
- Cell phones are occasionally used in class to look up definitions, but most of the time they are put away. Students may have to take their phone to the office if it rings or vibrates during class even if it is a parent contacting them. They can check it once the bell rings. This is mostly for my 5th/6th period.
- I will pass out everything the students will need for their interactive notebook, but I also have these worksheets available on my website should they lose anything. I will not print them out another one. It is their responsibility to print any worksheets they are missing for their interactive notebook.
- Please do not have your child go ahead. Lesson plans are posted on my website for parents and students in case they are absent. There are usually instructions associated with each assignment and they could do it wrong if they go ahead. If they do an assignment in advance, they either will have an additional assignment or will have to do it again.

Week of November 5th

History

We have backtracked and have started chapter 2. For their interactive notebook, they will receive six worksheets to put inside. I have gone over which six belong in there. They will have lose points for having the wrong ones in their notebook and if they are out of order. I have explained how I want it and will do so a few more times over the next couple of weeks.

ELA (3/4 & 5/6 period)

They will start a new story called Rikki-Tikki-Tavi in their Study Sync book. This is a long story and there are several assignments they will be doing over the next week and a half before taking the test. They will also start to plan their MLK essay at the end of the week and will begin writing it next week.
